

Sabra is headquartered in New York and produces America's most loved hummus in Chesterfield County, Virginia. Our hummus is made using chickpeas grown on family-owned farms throughout the Pacific Northwest.

Sabra is a North American company, jointly owned by PepsiCo, which is headquartered in the U.S. and the Strauss Group, headquartered in Israel. Each company is a separate entity. Sabra hummus is exclusively produced and distributed in North America with more than 500 team members based in the US and Canada.

Sabra proudly dedicates time, energy, and resources to community activities within the US, and locally in Virginia, working with Feed More, Central Virginia's Core Hunger Relief Organization.

Sabra has no political positions or affiliations and does not provide financial support to any military or political operation.

The Facts:

We proudly share the following facts:

- Sabra is a North American company jointly owned by two global companies, PepsiCo and the Strauss Group.
- Sabra is separate and independent from its owners.
- Sabra hummus is made using chickpeas that are grown on family-owned farms in the Pacific Northwest.
- Sabra owns and operates one of the world's largest hummus manufacturing facilities, located in Chesterfield County, VA.
- Sabra employees are based in North America.
- Sabra products are produced and sold exclusively in North America.
- Sabra does not contribute to, nor support any political groups, and has no political affiliation. (Any suggestion otherwise is misleading.)

Note: Questions about PepsiCo or the Strauss Group should be directed to those entities.